Expand your know-how

The Air Cargo China Conference will take place on 6 June 2012, 10:00 – 12:00. This year's topic is "" and will be moderated by Mr Bernd Maresch, Managing Director of Hans Mars.

Air cargo's big balancing act The global economy has slowed down and air freight demand out of China and Asia has been sluggish or declining since mid-2011, while demand for air-freighted goods in the emerging Asian economies continues to expand. Is this a transitory event, or is there a structural shift taking place? What impact is it having on air freight carriers, forwarders and end customers? How far are we from reaching the point where east-west flows are in balance, rather than the historical situation where they are dominated by Asian exports?

The panel of experts will be discussing the directional imbalance of air cargo to and from China and other parts of East Asia, and the changes taking place in this most important of cargo markets, sharing their views on the effects on different parts of the supply chain.
